

MARCOLIN

THE NEW CAPSULE COLLECTION

The new Moncler Lunettes capsule collection has been crafted from lower impact materials for an environmentally conscious approach to eyewear manufacture. The brand's sunglasses and optical eyewear, designed and manufactured by Marcolin, are made of bio-based materials that are primarily natural in origin.

Moncler's Sport, Duvet and Timeless designs have inspired this exclusive collection, with freshness coming from a new color palette. The styles present modern interpretations of Moncler's inspiring legacy and expertise.

SUN COLLECTION

ML0192

These sport-inspired sunglasses feature innovative frames that are primarily made of cellulose acetate and natural plasticizers that together account for more than 65% bio-based content. The rectangular frames have slim rims and shaped temples, and the iconic bell-shaped logo decorates the inside of the temple tips. The color range brings a modern interpretation to the classic style.

ML0198

This feminine frame has a soft square shape with contoured temples. The lenses are embedded in a cellulose acetate frame and natural plasticizers that together account for more than 65% bio-based content. The dynamic, contemporary look features the bell-shaped logo on the temples, which is also laser-engraved on the temple tips.

OPTICAL COLLECTION

ML5117

These round-framed opticals are inspired by the light puffy effect of Moncler's iconic down jackets thanks to the soft rounded volumes of the structure. The cellulose acetate frame and natural plasticizers account for more than 65% bio-based content and offer exclusive comfort thanks to the new temple tip with grip on the interior. The temples are embellished with the elegant Moncler logo.

ML5120

These geometric opticals play with round and square engravings on the frame and keyhole bridge. The style is made of innovative cellulose acetate and natural plasticizers that together account for more than 65% bio-based content. The light, slender silhouette has a minimalist logo on the temples and a new rubber temple tip that ensures comfort and stability.
