EVP EVOLUTION

Here, we see who you are.

Some companies tell their story with numbers. Others use slogans. You know who Marcolin is at first glance.

For over sixty years, we have been translating vision into matter, ideas into form, and tradition into change.

We were born in the heart of the Dolomites, and we carry the craftsmanship of that place with us, where precision is an art. However, it would be a mistake to think that ours is merely a history to be preserved. Rather, it is an active principle—a legacy that works, evolves, and is open to the present.

At Marcolin, history is a question that always demands new answers.

Here, we see talent.

Every vision needs nurturing.
That's why we invest in people
development—not as a side initiative, but as the center of our project.

We achieve this through continuous learning paths, such as the Leadership and Manufacturing Academies.

We create the conditions that allow each person to develop their perspective on the world. 5,600 hours of training is not a figure to show off; it's a sign of our daily, concrete, and unwavering commitment.

We do this because we believe that, like people, companies grow only if they keep learning.

Here, we see far ahead.

We look to tomorrow, but never alone. Our innovation stems from active listening, confrontation, and the ability to embrace change.

We don't chase buzzwords like equity, diversity, and inclusion; we practice them every day in the gestures that matter, like the psychological support service and gender equality certification. We do this without proclamations, with consistency.
